"make it happen"

practical experience

Ridwaan Boda is an Executive in ENSafrica's Corporate Commercial department, where he heads up the TMT team. He is also a member of the United Nations Global Pulse Panel of International Data Privacy Experts.

Ridwaan has considerable experience and expertise in the TMT arena, having worked and advised on some of South Africa's largest and most prominent information and communications technology ("ICT") transactions.

Ridwaan has advised and acted on behalf of various listed companies, state-owned entities, quasi-government corporations, and public sector bodies in a wide variety of sectors, including financial services, petrochemicals, retail, health care, pharmaceutical, technology and resources.

He also has significant global experience, having worked in the United Kingdom and on a number of multijurisdictional matters.

Ridwaan's experience and expertise in the field of ICT law includes advising on large-scale ICT outsourcing transactions, complex systems integration projects, as well as other large-scale ICT projects. He has drafted and negotiated numerous commercial and TMT-related agreements, including those relating to outsourcing, ICT procurement, software, hardware, systems integration, consultancy and "body-shop", cloud-computing, teaming and collaboration and IP-transfer agreements, as well as IT policies and procedures.

Ridwaan also assists clients with their ICT-compliance requirements and has advised clients on legislation pertaining to TMT law, including the King III (IT Governance), the South African Promotion of Access to Information Act, data privacy and protection legislation (including the Protection of Personal Information Act), the Electronic Communications and Transactions Act, the Electronic Communications Act and other relevant legislation.

In addition, Ridwaan has experience in advising on private security industry laws, having assisted various clients with compliance with such laws, as well as on security services transactions. He has advised a major bank in relation to the bank's cash operation's agreements, including those related to physical security of cash, cash-in-transit, cash processing and associated technology and service agreements.

He has also advised clients in relation to a number of telecommunications regulatory and contractual matters involving, inter alia, the Independent Communications Authority of South Africa ("ICASA").

He has assisted clients in relation to transfer of licence and change of control issues under the Electronic Communications Act and was part of the team that advised a major telecommunications company in relation to its acquisition of a major IT company, including in relation to the transfer of licence/change of control issues emanating from the transaction. He has also advised a global European telecommunications company on local ICASA compliance requirements and submissions.

Ridwaan is recognised as a leading/recommended lawyer by:

- Chambers Global Guide 2020, 2019, 2018, 2017 – IT & Telecommunications; 2016, 2015 – “up and coming” for IT & Telecommunications; 2020, 2019 - Fintech (South Africa)
